

What We Offer

Both training and technical support are available to EMPLOYERS, MANAGERS/SUPERVISORS, HR PROFESSIONALS, DIVERSITY OFFICERS, RECRUITERS and COWORKERS and include interactive open forums for examining stereotypes and misconceptions about people with disabilities and for changing attitudes, actions and exploring recruitment strategies and outreach techniques that enable businesses to more fully benefit from the rapidly expanding and highly underutilized pool of potentially qualified job candidates and customers.

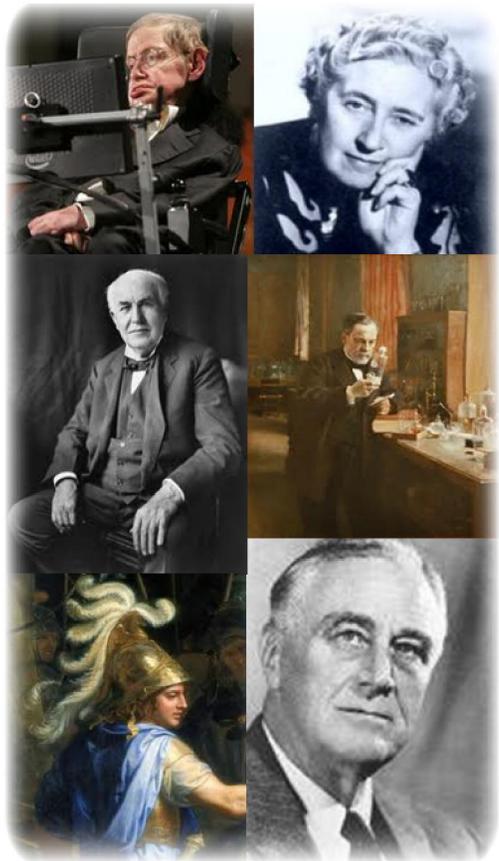

- 1) A Standard Training Course - Our standard course contains the core training applicable to most industries.
- 2) Customized Classes - Our training sessions can also be customized to include content specifically tailored to address an organization's specialized needs.
- 3) Individualized Coaching - One-on-one coaching and technical support is available to augment classroom instruction and to respond to situational issues and concerns.

To learn more about why this program may be the right choice for your organization, call Brett Eisenberg, Executive Director, Bronx Independent Living Services, 718-515-2800.

Making a difference...

Throughout History

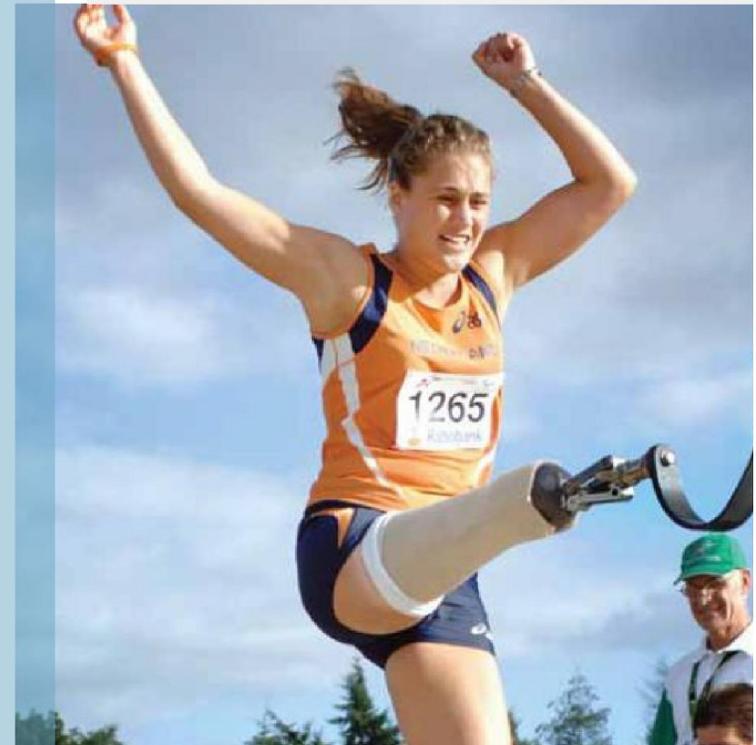

*Alexander the Great • Hans Christian Anderson • Aagetha Christie
Alexander Graham Bell • Buddha • Sir Winston Churchill • Helen Keller
Charles Dickens • Albert Einstein • Joan of Arc • Christopher Reeve
Catherine the Great • Thomas Edison • Heather Mills
Francis Ford Copolla • Galileo • Steven Hawking • Michaelangelo
Franklin Delano Roosevelt • George Bernard Shaw • Michael J. Fox
Louis Pasteur • Vincent van Gogh*

Throughout history, people with disabilities have been some of our world's greatest contributors. At the same time, they have also been among the most misunderstood and overlooked segments of society. Often denied equality, access and opportunity, most people with disabilities even today, remain poor, isolated, under-educated and unemployed.

ATTITUDES DETERMINE ACCESSIBILITY

Although there are many well-qualified individuals with disabilities that are highly motivated to work, until they are recognized as people first and as equally 'viable' candidates - seen for their capabilities and not their disabilities - they will remain underutilized and impoverished, and the benefit of their talents will be lost to our local economy, and to our community.

Bronx Independent Living Services is a non-profit, consumer directed organization dedicated to empowering people with disabilities to understand and exercise their civil and human rights and contribute to the mainstream of community living. We provide a fully customizable Disability Etiquette training curriculum that can be used to heighten disability awareness in the workplace. Focusing on large and medium size employers, this program will involve a variety of services encompassing outreach, curriculum development and hands-on training.